Where there's smoke

Fiction for primary school age

By John Heffernan

"Stay to fight. Fight to stay."

There's smoke over the hills, but nobody in Edenville seems too worried, even though it's the fire season and the bush is tinder-dry. With the help of their biker mate Tiny, Luke and his Mum seem to have found a place where they can be free of the trouble that has been following them. They have made friends in this town, and it looks like they'll stay for a while. But as the smoke drifts their way, this quiet little town is threatened by an event that could destroy everyone and everything.

Living with fire: people, nature and history in Steels Creek

An historical and personal account of a fire in the Black Saturday fires in 2009

By Christine Hansen and Tom Griffiths

In Living with Fire, historians Tom Griffiths and Christine Hansen trace both the history of fire in the region and the human history of the Steels Creek valley in a series of essays which examine the relationship between people and place. These essays are interspersed with four interludes compiled from material produced by the community. In the immediate aftermath of the fire many people sought to express their grief, shock, sadness and relief in artwork. Some painted or wrote poetry, while others collected the burnt remains of past treasures from which they made new objects. These expressions, supplemented by historical archives and the essays they stand beside, offer a sensory and holistic window into the community's contemporary and historical experiences.
